DEBORAH MELLMAN

biography

Deborah Mellman has over 20 years experience in public relations and marketing, her clients include feature film and television actors, authors, directors, and voice over talent, special events and non-profit organizations. Known for her dedication, professionalism and candor, Deborah strives to go above and beyond client expectations.

Deborah began her career at Bragman Nyman Cafarelli where she parlayed an internship into a four-year stint as an account executive at the upscale PR and marketing firm. Veteran publicist Susan Geller then recruited her for a position at her high profile agency, executing publicity campaigns for talent and entertainment projects.

During her tenure at Much and House Public Relations, she continued working with high-profile personalities and added corporate clients, special events and non-profit companies to her roster. She went on to become a partner at indie PR - before launching her own praisery over a decade ago.

Deborah prides herself on handling long-term and repeat clients. Her goal setting and creativity have enabled her to successfully balance the needs of her clients with the demands of the press - no small feat. Her ability to create appropriate public awareness campaigns for a variety of corporate and entertainment clientele is renowned in professional circles and has been one of the many traits that separate her from the rest.
